

The University of Delaware Great Debate Series presents:

Abortion

Two philosophers, Don Marquis and Richard Hanley, will debate the ethics of abortion on October 23rd from 7:00 to 9:00pm in Smith 120 on the UD Campus.

Don Marquis is the author of the best-known philosophical argument for the immorality of abortion. Professor of Philosophy at Kansas University, he is currently a visiting professor at Princeton University.

University of Delaware Associate Professor Richard Hanley, whose most recent book is South Park and Philosophy, is currently writing a book about abortion.

The University of Delaware Great Debate Series is run by the Philosophy Department in conjunction with the Ethics Program. The debates are open to the public, and admission is free.
