

CDS Lunch and Learn Series begins March 7 with “Getting to Know CLSC”

UD’s new Career and Life Studies Certificate Program

The Center for Disabilities Studies is kicking off its new Lunch and Learn series with a presentation by Laura Eisenman, Debbie Bain and Wendy Claiser. These CDS staff members will share information about the new CLSC program.

CDS was awarded a $2.3 million grant from the U.S. Department of Education to create comprehensive, inclusive and customized postsecondary education programs for students with intellectual disabilities. Through the CLSC program, students will engage in specialized career studies and life studies coursework and have access to a variety of integrated academic, work and social activities on campus.

Their studies will lead to a Career and Life Studies Certificate.
