Adjunct Student Teacher Field Instructor – Middle School Mathematics
The School of Education seeks a qualified educator to supervise student teachers during their middle school mathematics student teaching experience for the Fall 2017 semester which begins on August 28 and ends on December 11, 2017. Candidates should have a master’s degree or equivalent in middle school mathematics, have a minimum of three years experience in middle school, be knowledgeable about current best practices in math education, and have a teaching certificate in middle school mathematics. Although this adjunct position is just for the fall semester, possibilities exist for a successful candidate to supervise student teachers in future semesters. Adjunct field instructors are paid per student.

Responsibilities include supervising students in the field, providing written feedback after observations, orienting clinical educators, creating improvement plans if appropriate, writing mid-term and final evaluations, and participating in orientation.
