EMALEA PUSEY WARNER

Emalea Pusey Warner (1853-1948) is best remembered on the University of Delaware campus as a champion of education. In 1911, she became chairperson of the State Federation of Women's Clubs' Committee on Education, and she worked diligently towards establishing a state-supported women's college. When the General Assembly of Delaware passed the Women's College Bill, Mrs. Warner served on the Commission. In 1914, she was appointed chairperson of the Advisory Council of the Women's College and soon became the first woman on the Delaware College Board of Trustees. At the Delaware College Centenary Anniversary in 1934, she was awarded a Medal of Honor in recognition of her many accomplishments in the field of education. Both Warner Hall on the University campus and Warner Elementary School in Wilmington are named in her honor.

ALEXANDER J. TAYLOR SR.

Alexander J. Taylor Sr. (1875-1940) has been described as "a man who was never unwilling to try to solve any problem." It was his custom to devote himself energetically to each task until it was done satisfactorily. He entered Delaware College in 1889 and was one of 13 who graduated four years later. Class valedictorian, with a baccalaureate degree in civil engineering, Mr. Taylor always remained faithful to the University. He was elected to the Board of Trustees in 1927, reelected in 1932 and again in 1938. He served on the Grounds and Buildings Committee and Executive Committee, and he was chairman of the Finance Committee. Taylor Gymnasium was named in his honor.
