Adjunct faculty position in German, University of Delaware

The Department of Languages, Literatures and Cultures at the University of Delaware seeks a dynamic and innovative instructor to teach German courses at all levels of the curriculum.

Qualifications and Responsibilities
The successful candidate will have an MA in German Language, Literature, Linguistics, or Cultural Studies (Ph.D. preferred) and native or near-native fluency in German and English. Experience teaching college-level German is highly desired.

The core responsibilities of this position involve teaching introductory and intermediate German.

Candidates should be committed to high-quality instruction in a collaborative, communicative-based learning environment. They should be able to work with students with diverse learning styles and backgrounds. Candidates should also have experience with using technology to foster student learning. They should be willing to collaborate with colleagues to advance student outcomes. The candidates should be familiar with contemporary second language acquisition methods, national and state standards, and intercultural competence. The instructor is also expected to hold two hours of office hours per week.

Compensation
This is a temporary, part-time, non-benefited position. Rate of pay is based on level of education.

Interested candidates may send a cover letter, CV and a statement of teaching philosophy to:
