

Adjunct Faculty Position, Global Studies, Department of Business Administration

An adjunct position is open to instructors interested in teaching introductory international business classes at the undergraduate and, depending upon qualifications, the graduate level in the Lerner College of Business and Economics.

Responsibility

The successful applicant is responsible for teaching two sections of BUAD 384: The Global Business Environment; each section meets twice a week for 75 minutes during the fall and/or spring semesters. Adjunct faculty must also be available for office hours outside of class as part of their agreement to teach.

There is no standard syllabus or material set for this course. Faculty members develop syllabi and course materials in accordance with the programs goals and practices of the Global Enterprise Management and International Business Studies majors. UD faculty involved in these programs will review syllabi and course material.

Qualification

Candidates should have a graduate degree in a relevant business discipline. PhDs are preferred. Professional experience is a plus.

Compensation

This is part-time, non-benefitted position. Rate of pay is based on level of education and experience.

Application

Please send a cover letter and CV or resume as a single PDF document to Daniel Sullivan at dps@udel.edu. Applications are accepted on an ongoing basis.
